GCN Announces Executives of the Year Winners
Martha A. Dorris, Robert Carey, James Lewis and Tom Davis 2009 Winners

Falls Church, VA --- September 8, 2009 – Government Computer News announced today the winners of its 22nd annual Executives of the Year and Hall of Fame winners.

The Executives of the Year and Hall of Fame winners are selected by the Government Computer News editorial board and recognize technology excellence in government by individuals who have shown innovation, dedication, and excellence in their achievements over the past year.

The awards will be presented at the GCN Awards Gala on October 22, 2009 at the Washington Hilton and Towers. The event is attended annually by more than 1,000 senior government technology leaders and executives from government contractors nationwide.

The GCN Executives of the Year for 2009 Are:

DoD Executive of the Year

Mr. Robert Carey, Chief Information Officer, Department of the Navy

Civilian Executive of the Year

Ms. Martha A. Dorris, Deputy Associate Administrator, Office of Citizen Services and Communications, GSA

Industry Executive of the Year

James Lewis, Director and Senior Fellow, Technology and Public Policy Program, Center for Strategic and International Studies

Hall of Fame Awardee 2009

Honorable Tom Davis, Federal Government Relations Director, Deloitte, and former Congressman of Virginia.

“Each of these Executives of the Year, through their leadership and by their example, have made a significant impact this past year in showing how information technology can be more effectively harnessed by the Government,” said Wyatt Kash, editor in chief of Government Computer News. “The induction of former Virginia Congressman, Tom Davis into GCN’s Hall of Fame reflects his long-standing contributions to the Government IT community —particularly in his role as Chairman of the House Government Reform Committee.”
